Call for Papers

The Journal of Political and Social Studies (ISSN: 2822-521X) is an international peer-reviewed academic publication with a primary focus on various fields within social, humanities, and administrative sciences, especially Political Science. The journal aims to publish research conducted in these disciplines, closely monitoring current global academic debates at both theoretical and empirical levels. In addition to contributing to these discussions, the journal maintains a mission to prioritize their local implications.

As we commemorate the 100th anniversary of our Republic, the concept of "Republic" as well as republics and republicanism worldwide, the history and theoretical foundations of the Turkish Republic, but not limited to these topics, are subjects we seek to explore. We invite research articles, book reviews, and similar academic works in English or Turkish to be submitted via the article submission tab on our website. The suggested topics for this issue are as follows:

1. Theories of Republic and Republicanism
2. Debates on the Republic in Turkey
3. Republic Practices Worldwide and in Turkey
4. History of the Turkish Republic
5. Administrative Structure and Legal Foundations of the Turkish Republic
6. Atatürk and the Ideological Foundations of the Republic
7. Declaration of the Republic and the Formation of National Identity
